

Name : Muhammad Shahzeb

Roll # : Sp22-bse-073

Assignment : Pak Studies

Submitted to : Sir Furqan Mehmood

Date : 6/21/2023

Political Party:

A political party is an organized association of people with comparable political ideals, viewpoints, and objectives. Together, they campaign for office, ascend the political ladder, and shape public opinion. Political parties are essential to democratic regimes because they give people a forum to engage in politics, sway public opinion, and represent the interests and concerns of particular groups or ideologies.

Political System in Pakistan:

Pakistan has a federal parliamentary democratic system in place. The Pakistani Constitution, which outlines the composition, duties, and authority of numerous institutions, including the executive, legislative, and judicial branches, serves as the foundation for the country's political system.

The Prime Minister of Pakistan is the head of government and has extensive executive authority; the President of Pakistan is merely the ceremonial head of state. The National Assembly is the lower house of Pakistan's parliament, and the Senate is the upper house. A system of both direct and indirect elections is used to choose the members of both houses.

There are several political parties fighting in elections in Pakistan, both at the national and provincial levels. Major parties including the Pakistan Tehreek-e-Insaf (PTI), Pakistan Muslim League-Nawaz (PML-N), and Pakistan People's Party (PPP), among others, have influenced Pakistan's political scene.

Periods of military control, political instability, and changes between democratic and authoritarian regimes have all been features of Pakistan's political history. The functioning and development of Pakistan's political system have been impacted by issues with governance, corruption, and ethnic and regional tensions.

It's important to keep in mind that Pakistan's political environment and system are still changing, thus the precise particulars and dynamics may change over time.

